2016 Conference Theme

From ‘Rhodes Must Fall’ and ‘Black Lives Matter’ to Charlie Hebdo and Cologne, from the riots in Gujarat and urban London to the persecution of the Uyghurs and the Roma, from the global refugee crisis to the growth of extremism and Islamophobia—the past years have shown that race and racism are woven into the fabric of international politics.

In the academic field of International Relations (IR), race nonetheless continues to be seen as a domestic issue—or alternatively, as a historical phenomenon, as something that was relevant in bygone eras but which the discipline has sufficiently dealt with. Indeed, while there has been a drive for more global and non-Eurocentric IR scholarship, little has been done to interrogate, problematise, and confront what W.E.B. du Bois described as the problem of ‘the global colour line’. In light of this, the 2016 Millennium conference aspires to open new and critical grounds for debate and discussion regarding the imprints and effects of race and racism in contemporary world politics.

This conference will interrogate and theorise what it means to live in a racialized world. Where is race in IR theory and why is it so rarely addressed? Can modern social and political thought be ‘unwhitened’? How do racial differences, cultivated by slavery, conquest, colonialism and genocide, continue to inform debates on democracy, good governance, military intervention, and liberal empire? What is the link between race and capitalism? Have multiculturalism, liberal tolerance, and secularism failed? How does race feature in discussions on immigration, security, environmental politics, and global distributive justice? How do racial identities interact with notions of gender, class, ethnicity, and nationality? What are the genealogies and hidden histories of race in IR as a profession? Where and how are conceptions of race contested?

Cover Design Note

The artwork accompanying this year's Millennium conference comes from Kenya-born, Brooklyn-based artist Wangechi Mutu's “Histology of the Different Classes of Uterine Tumors,” 2006. We would like to thank Wangechi and her team at Wangechi Mutu Studios for their help and support.
Dear conference delegates,

We are very pleased to welcome you to the 2016 Millennium conference.

Millennium: Journal of International Studies is a peer-reviewed and highly ranked international journal that aims to publish critical, theoretical, and boundary-pushing articles from the discipline of International Relations (IR), as well as original thinking from elsewhere in the social sciences with a global dimension. We welcome challenging and innovative contributions that articulate alternative theoretical perspectives and that explore subject areas with which IR has had little or no serious engagement.

As one of the few peer-reviewed academic journals edited completely by postgraduate students, Millennium strives to be a place of intellectual pluralism and diversity where contributions from research students can rub shoulders with the great and the good. We encourage submissions from research students, young academics, and established scholars alike, and offer a forum where IR scholars can engage in dialogue across boundaries, borders, continents, departments, and academic disciplines.

We would like to thank you all for attending this year’s Millennium conference; we hope you will find it thought-provoking and rewarding.

Yours sincerely,

Ilaria Carrozza, Ida Danewid, & Evelyn Pauls

Millennium is pleased to offer delegates an inclusive conference reception in the Shaw Library of the Old Building, with music, wine, non-alcoholic beverages, and canapés to encourage mingling, debate, and discussion amongst guests.

The easiest way to the Old Building is along Aldwych and up Houghton Street. This avoids the construction works on the LSE campus.

Music will be provided by London-based DJ and artist Shaka Lish.

Artwork Display

Millennium is pleased to exhibit a selection of images from Akanksha Mehta's visual work on settler colonialism and occupation in the old city of Hebron in Palestine. The images tell stories not only of the violence, brutality, and consequences of Israeli occupation and the presence of settlers in Hebron, but also of the everyday life and daily acts of resistance of Palestinians in Hebron. They provide a means to visualise the spatialities of settler colonialism and the emotions and bodies they contain. The pictures are displayed in the Clement House Lobby.
Clement House (CLM) Information

Lunch and some coffee breaks will be served in room 4.02—signs will point the way there once you are on the fourth floor. A selection of academic publishers will also be present in room 4.02 throughout the conference.

Safety Note

On hearing the fire alarm, please leave the building promptly and make your way to the assembly point outside Clement House (CLM) to the left and around to the back of the building; stewards will guide the way. Do not attempt to re-enter the building until permitted to do so by the Security Staff.

Call for Submissions:

The 2017 Northedge Prize

Established in 1986 to commemorate the invaluable contribution of the late Professor F.S. Northedge to the creation of Millennium, the annual Northedge Essay Competition furthers a Millennium tradition of publishing exceptional student scholarship in a leading IR journal.

The essay may be on any topic within International Relations or related areas of study, but critical papers that engage with progressive issues, innovative approaches, and philosophical arguments, are especially welcomed. The essay must be doubled-spaced and 7,000 to 9,000 words in length. For eligibility requirements, please consult Millennium’s website:

www.millenniumjournal.org

The due date for consideration in the 2017 Northedge Prize is 15 January, 2017. Submissions can be made via email to Millennium@lse.ac.uk
